

The Harvest Fields

Summer 2015

Hello Partners, I hope this newsletter finds you all well and anticipating the relief of the fall season. 2014 was an exceptional year for Compassion and here are some of the year end highlights. I hope you all are enjoying these warm summer days, yet staying as cool as possible.

As many of you know, I have been on an extended furlough in the States, furthering my education, promoting the kingdom and getting much refreshing while seeking my Father as to what's next. Please pray with me and I hope to inform you soon as to what the next is. (smile)

Home-Work

Here in the States, I have not been really resting because I've been busy at work while home as well. One of the projects, I thank God for inspiring me to do and giving me five wonderful pastors to support me in the effort was our "Pastor to Pastor Mission Summit". Several pastors and mission advocates came together for a one day conference to inspire, encourage and enhance mission knowledge and commitment for those who were able to attend. God showed up and all who came were blessed. We even had some international pastors from Benin Nicolas Ahouanvoweke and Boris Houeze - who brought insight and inspiration all the way from the continent of Africa.

Commencements Continue

God has been faithful through another year for the children of Compassion in both Haiti and Benin. In Benin we had 16 graduates, 8 from the village school in Agondoton and 8 from the urban school in Calavi. It's amazing to me how God continues to make a statement of His grace and goodness to us. For as I have mentioned before in previous newsletters, the number 8 represents "new beginnings" and this year in Benin we have "Double- New Beginnings". Glory to God! I knew I would miss their graduation, so I took a picture with the Calavi grads before I left.

Love my Kids.

Haitian News

In Haiti we had 13 graduates, all of whom passed their exams. Several will be staying on with Compassion in our secondary school God has blessed us to have.

Caribbean Christmas Child Project

Our annual Caribbean Christmas Child Project has begun. If any church would like to participate in preparing gifts for our children in Haiti contact Gwen Cary @ 215-927-7284.

Any individual interested in being a part of the team that will take in and deliver the gifts as well as minister in various ways, please contact Pastor Karen Robinson @ 215-840-9251.

Working with my Father,
Brenda
